Please consider this information carefully before deciding whether to participate in this research.

Purpose of the research: To examine how performing multiple tasks affects performance.

What you will do in this research: You will view a moving object on a computer display and you will do your best to track that object using either a mouse or a joystick. You will also respond by pressing a button whenever another event occurs on the computer display. While you are performing this task, you will be asked to also perform a second task such as counting backwards or repeating words that are read to you.

Time required: Participation will take approximately 60 minutes to complete.

Risks: There are no anticipated risks associated with participating in this study. The effects of participating should be comparable to those you would experience from viewing a computer monitor for 60 minutes and using a mouse or keyboard.

Benefits: At the end of the study, we will provide a thorough explanation of the study and of our hypotheses. We will describe the potential implications of the results of the study both if our hypotheses are supported and if they are disconfirmed. If you wish, you can send an email message to [investigator's name (email address)] and we will send you a copy of any manuscripts based on the research (or summaries of our results).

Compensation: You will receive [$X (or X Study Pool credits)] for participating in this study.

Confidentiality: Your participation in this study will remain confidential, and your identity will not be stored with your data. Your responses will be assigned a code number, and the list connecting your name with this number will be kept in a locked room and will be destroyed once all the data have been collected and analyzed. OR (Choose which one of these statements of confidentiality best describes your plan or write a description of your plan.) Your participation in this study will remain confidential and there will be no link between your responses and your identity.

Participation and withdrawal: Your participation in this study is completely voluntary, and you may withdraw at any time without penalty. You may withdraw by informing the researcher that you no longer wish to participate (no questions will be asked).
